“Telihold” is an experimental design, a runic-latin hybrid font with some educational purpose. Since Szekely-Hungarian runes (rovás) has no difference in lowercase and capital versions, I used the lowercase glyphs for the latin look “cheat”, and capitals for the original runes and their places. I was trying to keep all the cheat glyphs as original as possible, and choose the closest matches to each glyph. I made only minor changes in forms, most of them has just been reflected horizontally/vertically.

For the original rovas, I used the version of Adorján Magyar.
